

It is a great pleasure for me to provide a recommendation on the excellent services provide by Christopher and Crystal Regan. I have consulted with Christopher for the past four years, at least twice annually and more often when T was encountering distressing or stressful times.

I have sought their input on areas of personal issues; relationships challenges, through a divorce and with the development of a new friendship. Their support and guidance has been a godsend to me, as I navigated some very difficult times in my life. I have found their approach kind, honest and above all very enlightening. Many issues that I struggle with seem to become must clearer and I often - say "aha" during and after a consultation. I refer back to my notes from our sessions many times and always find new insights.

Their insights into the work that I undertake and most importantly their understanding of the highly complex business relationships involving international investors with large sums on the line and the added complexity of a group speaking 4 different languages has led to very challenging negotiations and layers of subtleties. Christopher has the remarkable gift of seeing into the complex nature of the people involved, their motives and their unique approaches and this has greatly assisted me as the project coordinator and 'middle woman'. The insights have been so on the money and helped save many a situation.

I have found their services to be highly accurate, very in-tune, sensitive, positive, and highly professional and my bi-annual consultations are a very important part of my planning and life toolkit!

Please call them and learn how wonderful it is to have two such talented people that are so tuned-in to the world on your team

My best wishes,

KW
