

We're in the driver's seat

THE CHRYSTAL CONNECTION with Crystell and Christophir

In our world of machines and technology two terms are often used together - cause and effect. In the psychic world these terms are combined into one word: karma. The mere mention of the word karma in mixed company will bring many responses ranging from cat-calls to high-sounding explanations of destiny. In most cases the answers will be based on superstition and hearsay.

What is karma? Why does such a little word elicit such emotional ramblings?

It is not the word but the concept behind it that often casts a light on areas of our lives we would rather keep in shadow. With this one word we can strip away most of the fear associated with just living and throw the responsibility of finding joy back in our own laps, right where it belongs. The concept of karma is simple. We have all heard it in different forms, whatever you put out you will get back; as we sow, so shall we reap. The common denominator is that on all levels, we are completely responsible for what happens to us.

As conscious physical beings we have the ability to adjust the quality of our lives and living environment. Does that mean we can or should adjust other lives? To a degree our interaction as individuals and as a race creates singular or group affects but for this column we'll focus on the responsibility and rewards of self action.

To begin our search for fulfillment we have to learn not only to laugh at ourselves but also at our world and what we've made of it so far.

Let's hold our heads high and prepare to enter a world with few fears and many rewards. Don't be afraid to make mistakes. Through our stumbles we gain strength. The first step is the hardest. The concept of karma can be applied to all walks of life and most religions. It simply means that while God gave us the vehicle, we are in the driver's seat.

Next week we'll try to create a roadmap for our journey, through life.
